Yet quiet and serene he lay. As though he heard them not; Opensum did the youngster play, Though things were getting hot.

The time passed on—he did not start!
But took another nap:
Its father up the stairs did dart!
And give his door a rap.

He cried alond," Say, Freddie, say!
Why don't you leave your bed?"
But silently young Freddie lay.
As though he were quite dead,

"Sneak. Freddie." once again he cried, And"-but a lusty snore replied-Pa's patience nearly gone

Un to his face quick ran the blood A moment at the doorway stood In still, yet deep, despair,

And shouted 'gain, with thund'rous knock, 6 Young seemaded, do you hear?"
While in the hall loud ticked the clock,
That grated on his ear.

With augry push he opened the door, And slammed it to again,
With noisy strides across the fleor,
To the bed he walked again.

Then came a sound like threshing wheat; A butcher tendering steak;

Fear screams! hear moune! hear scampering feet!

Ah, Freddie is a wake.

A ringing bell, a mother's call,
May sometimes rouse a lad;
But the only sure thing, after all,
Is a father when he's mad.

A Beautiful Story.

Coleridge relates a story to this effect : Alexander, during his march into Africa, came to a people dwelling in peaceful huts, who knew neither war nor conquest. Gold being offered him he refused it, saving that his sole object was to learn the manners and customs of the inhabitants. "Stay with us," said the chief, "as long as it pleaseth thee. During this interview with the African chief two of his subjects brought a case before him for judgment. The dispute was this: The one had bought a piece of ground, which, after the purchase, was found to contain a treasure for which he felt himself bound to pay. The other refused to receive anything, stating that he had sold the ground with what it might be found to contain, apparent or consealed. Said the chief, looking at one. "You have a son;" and to the other, "You have a daughter; let them be married, and the treswas astonished. "And what," said the chief, "would have been the dicision in your country?" "We should have dismissed the parties, and seized the treasure for the King's use." "And does the sun shine in your country?" said the chief; "does the rain fall there? Are there any cattle there which feed upon herbs and green grass?" "Certainly," said Alexander. "Ah," said the chief, "it is for the sake of those innecent cattle that the Great Being permits the sun to shine, the rain to fall and the grass to grow in your country."

Planting in the Garden.

About the end of February or beginning of March, in this lattitude, we often get a few very warm days, when the citizens fresh to the country feels sure the spring is come, and is very anxious for fear the acceptable time should pass away and he not have his trees and plants, flowers and vegetables, put in before it is too late. The old hand, who has become a veteran in garden-work, will need no hint from us that this is all wrong; but there are so many new comers into the field and garden every year that we are sare our words of advice will not be thrown away.

Nothing should on any account he set out in spring until the ground has become so dry that it will crush under the heel when turn of frosty weather should certainly be over before much in the way of planting be attempted.

Even though the ground be telerably dry and warm, and in general good condition when the seeds or plants are put out, they are not always the first to bear over those sown later. A chill often stops growth for some time, while one which from the first has nothing to interfere with it, goes right | Friday, the 28th of March, on to fruition, without interruption. SomeBody's CHILD. - Somebody' child is dying-dying with the flush of hope on his young face and an indescribable yearning to live and take an honorable place in the world beside the companions of his youth. And somebody's mother is thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it-when her heart and home will be left desolate - because there was no cure for consumption. Reader, if the child be your neighbor's, take this comfortting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is curable, that men are living to-day, aged, robust men, whom the physicians proposuced incurable at the age of twenty-five, because one lung had almost been destroyed by the disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a most efficient alterative for seperating the scrofulous matter from the blood and lungs, and imparting strength to the system. It has cured hundreds of consump-

THE NOISE OF THE FINGER .- In the current number of the Medical Record, Dr. Hammond says when you poke the end of your finger in your ear the roaring noise you hear is the sound of the circulation in your finger. Which is a fact which any one can demonstrate for himself by first putting his fingers in his ears, and then stopping them up with some other substance. Try it, and think what a wonder of a machine your body is, that even the points of your fingers are such busy workshops that they roar like a small Niagara. The roaring is probably more than the voice of the circulation of the blood. It is the voice of all the vital processes together-the tearing down and buildup processes that are always going forward in every living body, from conception to death.
